

Job Overview

Premier Banker

What a premier banker does

Premier bankers at Wells Fargo strive to become trusted professionals of affluent customers, both consumer and small business customers, and respected partners to many financial professionals across the enterprise. They do so by engaging customers in needs-based conversations to discover what's uniquely personal and often complex about their financial situation and goals. Backed by Wells Fargo's experience, technology and resources, they develop a broad perspective and leverage a team-based approach across deposit, credit and investments to serve, advise and manage customers' individual financial needs.

This holistic focus on the customer experience is designed to help premier bankers acquire, grow and retain meaningful relationships so customers transition to long-term clients of Wells Fargo.

How a premier banker helps customers succeed financially

It starts by understanding each customer's full financial picture and finding out what's most important to them —whether that's saving for their children's college education, starting or managing a small business, building toward or starting retirement, or leaving a legacy.

With this knowledge and a strong understanding of the areas of focus and experience available from specialists across Wells Fargo, premier bankers deliver individualized service, advice and guidance that helps customers improve their financial lives by:

- Learning more about their financial situation and objectives to provide individualized options to meet their banking product and service needs.
- Evaluating customers' financial circumstances and offering introductions to partners who can address their unique needs, with a focus on financial advisors, business banking specialists, home lending, and wealth management.
- Continuously evolving in their understanding and assessment of customers' financial objectives, needs, and potential solutions through purposeful, planned outreach, evaluation, and follow up.
- Understanding and managing risk and always acting in the customer's best interest.

Equally important is continuous learning and professional development. Premier bankers benefit from a robust offering of onboarding, product and specialized training across disciplines, relationship management development workshops, and ongoing personal and team-based coaching.

This description is a general summary of the job. Day-to-day activities, duties, and responsibilities will differ from individual to individual due to factors including, but not limited to: experience, clients serviced, areas of focus, and overall client needs at a given time in a particular economic climate.
