

Stockton, California

A place to learn, live and belong.

Stockton offers a dynamic training and living experience in California's Central Valley. Located along the San Joaquin Delta, the community combines urban convenience, waterfront access, cultural diversity and regional connections.

LOCATION

San Joaquin Delta and Northern Central Valley

LIFESTYLE

Diverse, connected and community-focused

SETTING

Urban center with waterfront access

Why Stockton

Residents and trainees learn in a diverse Central Valley community with access to hospital, clinic and community-based care. The setting offers opportunities to build relationships, serve local families and stay connected to the communities they serve.

Community connection

A diverse community with local character and meaningful opportunities to build relationships.

Delta access

Waterways, parks and trails are nearby, making it easy to step outside and reset.

Regional reach

Sacramento, the Bay Area, Napa Valley and the Sierra Nevada are within reach for day trips and weekend exploring.

Recharge in every season

From Delta waterways to nearby parks and regional getaways, the Stockton area makes it easy to find ways to recharge outside of work.

Things to do nearby

- Explore local parks, trails and waterfront paths
- Enjoy boating, kayaking and fishing on the Delta
- Visit museums, theaters, farmers markets and restaurants
- Take day trips to Sacramento, San Francisco, Napa Valley and the Sierra Nevada.

Arts, culture and community

Stockton is home to local music, performing arts, museums, festivals, sports and community events. For trainees and families, the area offers a welcoming place to live, train and serve.