About the Finance Development Program

The Finance Development Program (FDP) gives new-in-career undergraduates an opportunity to launch their careers while gaining insight and experience in a variety of financial, operational and analytical areas.

The program consists of four different six-month rotational assignments, along with a comprehensive training curriculum to build solid business skills.

FDP locations span across the globe.

Some experiences include:

- Development sessions and workshops
- Leadership opportunities
- International rotations for top performers
- Networking and exposure to executives

Who are we looking for?

Ideal candidates for this program are:

- Driven, self-starting undergraduates; less than 12 months work experience
- Pursuing a career in finance or operations
- Minimum cumulative GPA of 3.4 or equivalent
- Relevant internship experience, with Dell preferred
- Interest in expanding global experience
- Analytical and problem-solving mindset

- Agile, innovative thinkers, eager to learn

Dell is looking for individuals to gain:

- An accelerated career path
- Technical and operational finance knowledge
- Leadership and problem-solving capabilities
- Controllership experience

Program Curriculum

FDP consists of structured curriculum with classroom-style learning in regional forums during Year 1 and global virtual team projects during Year 2.

Each semester has a different finance or operations concentration and provides technical and soft skills training.

- Semester 1: Finance, Operations & Accounting foundations
- Semester 2: Advanced business concepts & build critical thinking
- Semester 3: Virtual teaming & business simulation
- Semester 4: Auditing & business project
