Valuing Employees: Positive Employee Relations in the Workplace (Half day)

Employees at this Charter FCC unit participated in the Valuing Employees training. Valuing Employees (VE) is a one day highly interactive class room training for people leaders designed to communicate how the law, Standard Business Conduct and Spectrum policies directly relate to Spectrum's overall business success. The goal of VE training is to enhance the skills sets necessary to improve communication, foster teamwork, reduce risks and create a productive work environment. In the training, participants are challenged with real life workplace scenarios that will require them to apply previously acquired practical skills and skills reinforced in the training to resolve problems. Key Learning Objectives: Understanding the business case for valuing employees and maintaining positive employee relations Identifying workplace issues and potential issues Identifying and assessing legal risks and business implications of employee and manager workplace behavior and communication Determining the most appropriate response to workplace issues Target Audience: People Leaders
