Raytheon is now hiring for its new career initiative supporting professionals returning to the workplace. The 12-week paid program (including benefits) provides resources and opportunities to reactivate your career. Upon completion of the program, participants can transition into a full or part-time position.

We appreciate the diverse backgrounds, different perspectives and breadth of knowledge individuals who have taken career breaks bring to our teams. Through ReLaunch, you’ll learn how to leverage those experiences as you re-engage with your career.

Ideal Program Participants:
- Have taken a career break of at least two years
- Prior experience in your functional area of interest
- Have interest in returning in either a full-time or part-time position

Program Highlights:
- Training and professional development
- Networking with senior leadership
- Cohort community and mentorships
- Competitive pay and benefits
